Dr. Mia Bay

Professor Bay is a scholar of American and African American intellectual, cultural and social history, whose recent interests include black women's thought, African American approaches to citizenship, and the history of race and transportation. She holds a Ph.D. and M.Phil. from Yale University and a B.A. from the University of Toronto.

Prior to arriving Penn, Bay worked at Rutgers University, where she was a Professor of History and the Director of the Rutgers Center for Race and Ethnicity.

Dr. Bay's talk is based on her book, Traveling Black: A Story of Race and Resistance.

The Diversity Lecture Series is intended to give insight and understanding of multicultural issues and is designed to introduce an essential component of education in helping to encourage civil debate, broaden the basis for critical thought and promote cultural understanding.
